ELCOME to the unique and awesome cruising waters of Scotland and the north of Ireland. In your hands you have the comprehensive quide to all marinas and those anchorages where there are facilities ashore, stretching northwards from Eyemouth, or Sligo, or Ardglass, or Stranraer. Wherever your 'port of entry' your cruise northwards can be made all the more enjoyable by using Welcome Anchorages as your extra crew member, advising on safe havens to visit en route, as well as locations for equipment stockists, sail repairs, engine parts etc.

Similarly, if you are joining at the Shetlands or Orkney, your cruise south down either the west coast or east coast, can be guided by this annually updated publication.

And don't forget the canals! While magnificent and picturesque, referring to them simply as 'short cuts' does them a massive disservice, but they certainly do save time going from the Firth of Clyde to the west coast proper, via the Crinan Canal, or from the North Sea to the Western Isles courtesy of the mighty Caledonian Canal - look out for the monster in Loch Ness!

As usual, your Welcome Anchorages cockpit companion has been dissected into the six natural, popular sailing sectors in the north of the British Isles, each with its own designated colour and whereas this publication is the recognised northern cruising guide, it is not intended to be as technically comprehensive as the various Clyde Cruising Club's Sailing Directions (see page 79).

Also in this year's Welcome Anchorages, you'll see a number of marine centres showing the British Marine Scotland logo. They all maintain a code of quality and responsibility demanded by their membership of this national trade organisation.

Welcome Anchorages' popular news pages section, highlights new amenities and facilities upgrades, most of it supporting 'Awakening the Giant' the strategic framework for developing Scotland's marine tourism sector, created in 2015 and now really flexing its muscles going forward, under the banner of 'Giant Strides'.

Corpach Marina – Finally On The North West Charts

ESPITE having been known as 'The Outdoor Capital of the UK' for several years, Fort William has lacked a significant marine infrastructure for the leisure and cruising yachtsman. That is to change this season when Fort William will finally be on 'the charts'.

Situated at the southern end of the Caledonian Canal, where Loch Linnhe turns west into Loch Eil, and sheltered from the Sou'westerlies by the Ardgour Hills, Thomas Telford Corpach Marina was scheduled to open in April 2023. It affords stunning views of Ben Nevis and surrounding mountains, making it a logical stop before or after transiting the Caledonian Canal or simply exploring the little visited, but spectacular, Loch Eil.

This 45 berth marina offers much needed services; fully serviced pontoons, toilets and shower facilities, laundry, car and trailer parking, and a café: An Cafaidh Mara, opened in January with Robert and his team serving up breakfast, lunches, coffees, and cakes.

ONLY SLIPWAY

The café's large picture windows give stunning views across the marina complex to the Ardgour Hills. The marina also has the only slipway in the upper Loch Linnhe area to provide access to the water for the general public.

Thomas Telford Corpach Marina Ltd is a subsidiary of Caol Community Regeneration Company, a not-for-profit local community organisation with the objective of contributing to the social and economic regeneration of the local area. With that ethos in mind, the highest environmental standards are strived for both throughout the development and the operation of the marina, working with the RYA 'Blue-Green Initiative' and are aiming for the Yacht Harbour Association 'Clean Marina Accreditation'.

Located in the village of Corpach, the marina is in the heart of the community. When the fridge needs restocked the Co-Op store is a few minutes stroll away, and is located next to a pub where crews can indulge in a post sail beer with hearty pub grub. Local services also include a cash machine, museum, Post Office, EV recharging points, mainline train station and local bus stop.

Fort William is only a few miles away and serviced by local bus route or taxi. For a more 'active' travel experience there are rentable E-Bikes through the Hi-Bikes scheme and a bike route linking Corpach and Caol Village to Fort William where there are plenty of shops, restaurants and a cinema.

An attraction for the young and old alike is the world-famous Jacobite Steam Train, otherwise known as the Harry Potter Train. This travels past the marina four times per day in the summer months and always draws crowds to travel on it or simply to watch it pass by. The Glenfinnan Viaduct is 10 miles away on The Road to the Isles.

In the event your boat needs a little TLC, there are a number of marine engineering companies and shipwrights in the local area providing everything from outboard engine maintenance to GRP repairs. There are plans afoot to provide Winter Onshore Storage.

Up until now, Fort William and Loch Linnhe have never before been seen as a location for yacht owners to keep their boats over the winter months, and to make full use of the established marine services

Thomas Telford Corpach Marina will not just cater for yachts but will offer berths for small, commercial boats from local fishing boats to those operating day trips to spot the wildlife.

Pontoons In F

ORT WILLIAM Marina & Shoreline Community Interest Company (FWMSCIC) celebrated the official opening last August of the extension of the Fort William Pontoons project by lan Blackford, MP for Ross, Skye and Lochaber.

The pontoons were the brain child of a group of local volunteers who created the FWMSCIC after many different ideas about regenerating the Fort William waterfront from various sources over the past 25 years, nothing had actually come to pass.

Despite lots of red tape, these volunteers had secured around £185k in funding to make the initial project vision a reality and these were opened by Fiona Hyslop MSP Cabinet Secretary for Culture, Tourism & External Affairs in September 2016.

This initial project happened relatively quickly and in response to the users of the pontoons FWMSCIC decided to go

75 Years Of West Highland Week

ROM 29th July to 4th August the majestic hills and sheltered waters of the west of Scotland will play host to WHYW '23, the celebratory 75th edition of the iconic West Highland Yachting Week regatta.

For many racing crews and cruising racers, it is the highlight of their summer, and this special anniversary year promises a warm welcome back to all previous competitors as well as a focus on encouraging new entrants to come and experience the special 'WHYW bubble'

The base-moving regatta offers something for everyone with a menu of round-the-buoys races and passage racing, as well as renowned social activities, as the fleet moves between Craobh Haven Marina in Loch Shuna to Oban then up the Sound of Mull to Tobermory and finally back to Oban.

One of WHYW's long standing and major sponsors is Tunnock's; it is therefore only right that the week kicks off with a baking competition and bake sale in Craobh Haven to raise money for the RNLI. The social activities continue throughout the week; dinghy races, beach party, ceilidh, class parties, crabbing competitions for the kids, and so it goes on!

Prizes are on offer for all classes, spinnaker and restricted sail, every day, and even for some of the social activities, with overall prizes for the week including the Family Trophy for the 'best' family crewed boat presented at the final prizegiving.

WHYW '23 is an event for all, not just for those who race regularly, it is welcoming to those who have never or seldom raced before and those who think their racing days are over! To that end, new for 2023 is the Passage Race Series where boats can enter for the three passage races; Craobh-Oban, Oban-Tobermory and Tobermory-Oban and have 'days off' in-between to enjoy the various marinas and surrounding areas.

For more information, visit whyw. co.uk and to keep up to date follow WestHighlandYachtingWeek on Facebook and Instagram.

lace At Fort William Marina

ahead and add more pontoons, thinking this was going to be a straightforward process.

It has taken six long years to secure the three requisite marine licences for dredging construction and deposit, planning permission and landowner permissions.

The identification of who all the landowners were was a challenge in itself! Bathymetric surveys, wave studies, an Approval In Principle report for Transport Scotland, check certificates, a topographical survey, structural engineers report, core sampling, sediment sampling, etc all had to be carried out.

Each time one thing was sorted out there was another requirement and hurdle to jump over, revealed the committee of volunteers.

Carrying out the official opening, lan Blackford, said, "This is a wonderful new asset for Fort William and Lochaber and will enable the area to capitalise on marine tourism. Fort William and Lochaber have a lot to offer visitors, from the rugged scenery to a variety of famous attractions."

Hamish Loudon (director, FWMSCIC) said, "Fort William has been in sore need of having safe access on and off Loch Linnhe for all marine tourists and locals. It has been a huge amount of work to get this extension installed and it is wonderful to see the pontoons already being well used by many different vessels. This is the first step towards the regeneration of the waterfront in Fort William."

FWMSCIC have plans to further improve this facility, especially to provide further toilets with showers.

All-New Onshore Facilities At Ardfern

EWLY opened, now much improved, modern shower and toilet block has already proven to be a welcome addition to the range of services on offer at Ardfern Yacht Centre on Loch Craignish.

The facilities now provide more shower areas in both washrooms, with larger cubicles and private changing areas throughout.

A spacious foyer provides seating with free Wi-Fi and USB charge-points, allowing customers to escape the occasional spells of inclement weather whilst keeping fully charged and in touch!

Meanwhile a new, larger laundry room now includes a modern washing machine and dryer stack alongside a brand-new ice machine to make on board life a bit easier to manage.

Secure keypad entrance ensures that these facilities are open 24/7 throughout the year exclusively for boat owners and their guests.

The Call Of St Kilda

RDENT Welcome Anchorages user Dave Smith comments on our request for thoughts on recognition for those who have visited the outlying haven of St Kilda...

"My wife Sarah and I spent a month last year in the Outer Hebrides aboard our yacht Mollymawk, and we heard a lot of people talk of visiting St Kilda. We saw a few set off with that intention on what we deemed unfavourable days. We don't know the outcome.

However we bided our time and watched the weather and even dragged ourselves away from the HebCelt festival when we thought a weather window was appearing (the weather had been very 'trying' last year), but then had to wait a few more days. We were even in communication with another yacht that went out to Taransay on the day before us. Eventually we went through the Sound of Harris on the Wednesday (and learnt how strange the tides are at neaps) and headed out to St Kilda on the Thursday into a distinctly moderate sea, but with a forecast to improve.

The point is that we expected to see a flotilla of yachts head out with us. But in fact the yacht we had been talking to didn't go, and the only other yacht was a solo Swedish chap who was slightly ahead of us (there were of course a couple of fast craft on day trips).

Visiting St Kilda is a big deal and is a challenge to get right. Many talk of it, but only as an aspiration. Actually having a go is another matter. Seeing the yacht ahead pass under the cliffs really gives them scale. Quite awe inspiring. We were able to anchor for the night and return the next day before the weather came in yet again. So, yes, some form of recognition from Welcome Anchorages for those who succeed seems a good idea.

For information, the day boats have laid some moorings in the bay (marked 'private') so you have to anchor a bit further away from the pier. There are also two moorings put in place by the military to drag their craft back down off their slipway. I'm told that they are very secure.

Mollymawk features in the photograph on page 67 of Welcome Anchorages 2022 in the advertisement for Isle of Harris Marina. She is the yacht on the extreme left of the pontoon, with a white pilot house and a blue stripe around her hull. It must have been taken when we were there in 2019."

● Another Welcome Anchorages user, Ronnie Macdonald of SY Gail Force, comments, "In response to your question in the 2022 edition, my vote is a resounding YES for the production of a St Kilda burgee. It is such an iconic landing and well worthy of such an honour!"

Time Called On Distillery Tours?

IT'S AN undoubted highlight of many Scottish cruising holidays, when the hook goes down in a quiet bay at the side of which is a whisky distillery that advertises 'Visitor Tours.'

These are always enjoyable events for the entire crew to anticipate as they row or motor to tie up at a pier or pontoon, then wander ashore already taking in the aroma of maturing malt.

The tours are always interesting and incredibly no two distilleries appear to be the same. However, soon West Coast sailors may never know, depending on the result of a consultation on proposals launched by the Scottish Government that aim to outlaw breweries and distilleries from selling any branded products, even down to glasses, coasters etc that bear the name or logo of alcoholic products.

Also under these stringent proposals tours of distilleries and breweries could be made illegal.

Apparently Holyrood is concerned that 'glamorising' drinking will exacerbate a countrywide alcohol-related health problem.

Refurbished Offices At Kip Marina For Inspiration & MS&P

nspiration Marine and their brokerage arm, Michael Schmidt & Partner (MS&P), have re-opened their offices at Kip Marina after an extensive refurbishment.

As the exclusive on-site new and used yacht broker at Kip Marina (also covering Craobh Marina and Fairlie Quay), the Inspiration Marine and Michael Schmidt team are keen to welcome visitors to pop in and meet the boat sales staff, have a browse through their current listings, or chat about buying or selling in 2023.

Plans are afoot for an open event later in this year's sailing season to coincide with the arrival of the first award-winning Hanse 460 to Scotland and the MS&P team are always happy to have an informal chat about how to best present boats to maximise its eventual sale price and to explain their listing and marketing process. As full ABYA and British Marine members, the group operate to strict guidelines to protect both the buyer and seller throughout the brokerage process.

Kip brokerage manager James McPhail, recently awarded ABYA's Most Outstanding New Yacht Broker 2022, said "We are extremely proud to be based here at Kip, in the heart of one of the most beautiful sailing areas in the world, and our team are dedicated to providing the very best service to our clients."

James Stone, director of Inspiration Marine and Michael Schmidt & Partner added, "We are thrilled to have moved back into our stunning new offices in Kip Marina, which compliments the extensive investment Holt Leisure Parks have made recently on site. The offices will act as the perfect location to promote both new and used boat sales in Scotland and will work hand-in-hand with our existing office across the Clyde at Rhu Marina to cover all of the key Scottish sailing areas."

Inspiration Marine Group are the exclusive UK & Ireland distributors for Hanse, Dehler and Moody sailing yachts, Privilege and HH Catamarans, Fjord Motor Yachts & RYCK powerboats. The group head offices are based in Hamble, Southampton and both companies are represented by partner offices across Europe.

Two Ten Tonne Moorings Laid At Inver Restaurant

his year award-winning Inver Restaurant has laid two brand new moorings. Inver is right on the shore of Loch Fyne, near Strachur, a few hours sail from Portavadie Marina.

Current owners Pam and Rob took over Inver Restaurant (then Inver Cottage) in spring 2015 and have spent the last eight years building a reputation as one of Scotland's best dining experiences. Inver appears in influential Restaurant Magazine's list of the UK's 100 best restaurants at number 23. Inver has also earned a green Michelin star for its efforts towards sustainability and the Good Food Guide says they're in the Top Ten 'Most Exciting' restaurants in Britain.

For sailors, Loch Fyne is the longest sea loch in Scotland and Inver makes the most of the view above and the harvest below the water. Weekend lunch menus feature simply cooked fresh shellfish from the lochs nearby, as well as creative dishes of vegetables from nearby gardens and meat from the farms and hillsides. "The evening tasting menus are showstoppers," say Pam and Rob who have also built six atmospheric, boutique rooms right on the shore, which showcase Scottish craftsfolk; four architect-designed luxury 'bothies' and two simpler 'Shepherds Huts'.

Says Pam, "Moorings make such perfect sense at Inver, what we do is so much about connecting guests to the landscape outside, with the fantastic seafood and wild shoreline produce we use on the menu. We're occasional sailors ourselves and very excited to welcome our first seaguests to Inver this year!"

Ginspirational Sailing On The Clyde!

F YOU are looking for something a bit different in 2023 why not try The Cumbrae Gin Experience Sailing & Gin Tour with Flamingo Yacht Charters.

The yacht charter and sailing adventures company based at Largs Yacht Haven has partnered with the award-winning all female team of craft gin distillers from Millport on the Isle of Cumbrae to offer a memorable day out.

En-route to the Isle of Cumbrae, the beautiful scenery, nature and sea life of the Firth of Clyde ensure that there is plenty to see whilst sailing to Millport from Largs. If you are lucky, you may even spot Kylie, the resident dolphin, and the many playful seals that lounge lazily on the rocks of Wee Cumbrae and the Eileans in Millport Bay.

The distillery tour begins with a welcome drink (gin based of course!) as the team bring to life the fascinating history of gin, Millport and the colourful smuggling history of the Clyde. Guests then have the opportunity to view the copper still and learn about the botanicals used in each gin and how these are connected to the island. This is followed by a gin tasting of the array of awardwinning small batch craft gins to sip and savour before returning to the yacht for a tasty relaxing lunch on board.

Sailing home again guests enjoy views of Wee Cumbrae, the Isle of Arran, the Isle of Bute and beyond.

Flamingo Yacht Charters' Largs fleet now boasts some of the finest yachts available for charter on the West Coast of Scotland, comprising a fleet of yachts from Beneteau, Jeanneau, Bavaria and Hanse.

The Crinan Canal meanders through truly magnificent scenery which is rich in history, with many world-class heritage sites, a designated wildlife reserve and miles of forest walks and cycle ways. It runs between Ardrishaig, at the north west extremity of the Firth of Clyde, to Crinan on the "outside" west coast and allows the user to avoid the lengthy passage around the Mull of Kintyre.

Though only 14.5km in length there is just so much to see and do from walking, cycling, fishing or just taking time out to explore Knapdale. So step back in time, relax, slow down and stretch those sea legs ashore.

Visit the Egg Shed, treat yourself to a souvenir in the gift shop and discover the rich history of the Crinan Canal in the exhibition space with artifacts from Scottish Canals displayed alongside items supplied by the local community.

FACT FILE

The Crinan Canal is 14.5km (9 miles) in length with 15 locks and seven bridges. The sea locks and Lock 14 are mechanised and operated for you by Scottish Canals staff. All bridges are also operated by Scottish Canals staff.

Inland locks are manually operated and involve pushing lock gates and winding sluices. Indeed, many of our customers report back that working the locks is an enjoyable part of the Crinan passage. Please contact one of the sea locks or the canal office if you feel that you will require assistance. We may be able to put you in touch with an independent local operator to provide this service.

Ardglass is a major fishing port, and its marina is a useful stopping place on a coastal passage north or south, as it is close to the direct course and can be entered in all weather conditions. It is also a convenient spot to await a favourable tide for entering Strangford Lough.

Phennick Cove Marina has modern facilities, and is just 6 miles from Downpatrick, where most services are available.

Ardglass began as an Anglo-Norman port, then grew when exporting grain in the 15th Century. Its many historic buildings give the village a unique character.

The renowned golf course is immediately south of the harbour, and welcomes visitors.

Overnight rate for 'average' 40ft yachts is £30.00 excluding electricity (electricity £1.00 per night).

Portaferry offers traditional shops, pubs, restaurants and a market square, and is an attractive seaside town.

Here you will find Exploris, the Northern Ireland Aquarium, a rich architectural heritage and traditional charm.

Strangford is a smaller village, again with pubs, restaurants and shops. The newly installed visitor pontoon and two moorings labelled 'Cuan Hotel' enable visitors to sample the delights of both places. Local attractions include the National Trust properties at Mount Stewart and Castleward. St Patrick's heritage is everywhere, and there is a variety of local walks and places of natural beauty. Strangford Lough is an EU Special Area of Conservation and one of only three Marine Nature Reserves in the British Isles.

Ballycastle Marina is strategically situated just a few miles west of Fair Head and is a convenient arrival point from Scotland whether headed west or south. The marina is very sheltered, and just a few minutes walk from the town.

The seaside town is famous for its Old Lammas Fair, which has been held at the end of August each year for over 400 years.

Marconi conducted some of his earliest experiments in radio transmission between Rathlin and Ballycastle in 1898.

The town is an excellent centre for exploring Fair Head to the east, and the Causeway Coast to the west. It has a good range of shops, pubs, restaurants, and bus connections.

With the improvement in harbour facilities in I sheltered Church Bay, Rathlin is now a popular WC cruising port of call.

Rathlin Island is a fascinating place, and a magnet for sailors, birdwatchers and divers. The island has spectacular cliffs and is renowned for its colonies of puffins, kittiwakes, guillemots and razorbills. The waters around Rathlin have strong tides and are strewn with wrecks, the biggest being the 14,000-ton World War I armoured cruiser Drake, torpedoed in 1917.

Killybegs is Ireland's largest fishing port, with a large pelagic fleet active mostly in winter that lands the largest tonnage in the British Isles. The fine natural harbour, at the tip of a deep fjord-like inlet, makes it one of the safest, most sheltered, deep-water harbours on the Irish coast. Killybegs welcomes yachts and has visitors' moorings. There are plans to build a marina for local boatowners and visitors, but no date for construction of this development is available. Meanwhile, there are 3 visitor moorings east of the fish quay, or yachts can lie at the town pier with the small fishing boats.

FIRTH of CLYDE

HE CLYDE Estuary's numerous islands, many small towns and sheltered anchorages offer an attractive and safe place to sail, but the Clyde is also important as a base for wider cruising activity. The remainder of Scotland's west coast is accessible through the Crinan Canal, as is the east coast and Scandinavia via the Forth & Clyde and Caledonian Canals. Ireland and the northern Irish Sea is approximately a day's sail away.

Sailing in the Firth of Clyde splits into four areas, enabling the sailor to find water that is suited to his boat, level of experience, the weather, and crew ability. The east shore has the majority of the large marinas used for permanent berthing, good transport links and easy access from centres of population. The western areas generally offer destinations; places where sailors wish to visit, and they vary from secluded anchorages to harbours with pontoons and other village amenities.

Upstream the River Clyde and its sea lochs are well suited to powered craft and smaller sailing yachts, with Glasgow City again turning its face to the river and seeking to attract more activity on the water. Berthing facilities which now exist close to Glasgow City Centre will enable a cruising yacht to visit for a few days, or more.

To the south is the North Channel and the seaways from Ireland, England and Wales. For many visiting cruising folk this is the routeway to Scottish cruising. With good havens on the mainland coast, and the grandeur of Ailsa Craig and Arran on the horizon, it is a splendid introduction to cruising in Scottish waters.

Cruising on the Clyde has many advantages over land based touring, where, unless a ferry can be taken, long journeys around the heads of the lochs take up much of the time. On a yacht you can hope for a more direct line. This is a great source of satisfaction in itself and it soon becomes apparent why this region became so highly developed for industry and tourism long before road or rail travel was practicable.

So much more than a shortcut: the Crinan Canal

Magnificent scenery and wildlife, relaxing sailing, great attractions and more than a few surprises — it might be known as 'Britain's most beautiful shortcut,' but the Crinan Canal offers far more than just easier access to the sailing grounds of the Western Isles.

Meandering through the ancient coastal kingdom known as Dalriada in the heart of Argyll, the nine-mile-long canal links Ardrishaig at the Firth of Clyde with the picturesque village of Crinan and the world-class sailing of the west coast. Once a thriving freight artery, the 200-year-old waterway may be home to yachts rather than Clyde Puffers nowadays but it's still a vital link for boaters looking to avoid the long journey around the Mull of Kintyre.

While you can transit the canal in a day, there's no need to rush – put the hustle and bustle of everyday life to one side, moor up, and experience everything the Crinan has to offer. Explore the many stories and rich heritage of the canal and ancient Dalriada, get back to dry land and undertake an adventure on the miles of forest walks and cycle routes.

One of the most beautiful waterways in Britain, boaters taking to the Crinan can enjoy uninterrupted views of Scotland's breathtaking scenery and the chance to see some incredible wildlife. Catch a glimpse of deer and rare red squirrels in the surrounding pine forests, watch osprey soar through the skies above the waterway and look out for dolphins frolicking in the sea at Crinan. You might even spot a pine marten, one of Scotland's rarest mammals.

When you finally decide to leave the many appeals of the Crinan behind, you can sail through the canal to the Sound of Jura and the west coast for a more challenging cruise in one of the best sailing grounds in the world; or head through the canal to Loch Fyne for a relaxing voyage around the protected lochs and waters of the Firth of Clyde. Or, if the Crinan whets your appetite for canal sailing, you could even head north to the majestic, incomparable Caledonian.

From nature reserves teeming with some of Scotland's most iconic wildlife to breathtaking scenery and a huge number of opportunities to stretch your sea legs onshore, the Crinan Canal really is much more than a beautiful shortcut. Why not set sail and see for yourself?

Thomas Telford Corpach Marina, opening April 2023, is a much needed and long awaited 45 berth facility to serve the greater Fort William area. It is located at the southern entrance of the Caledonian Canal, a 15 minute drive from Fort William town centre, and is served by regular bus and train services. The marina provides all year facilities comprising an onsite café, slipway, parking, shower and laundry facilities. There are amazing views of the mountains (principally Ben Nevis) and the shorefront sweeping round to Fort William. Annual berth based on a 12m yacht is £4524, a 6 month summer season £2952, and daily tarrif of £36 (£3/metre).

Thomas Telford Corpach Marina Mobile: 07410 884902 Email: info@corpachmarina.co.uk Website: www.corpachmarina.co.uk VHF: 80 (08:00 - 17:00)

Corpach is the western terminus of the Caledonian Scottish Canals Canal, which links Scotland's east and west coasts, Corpach Sea Lock: 01397 772249 avoiding the difficult passage around the north of mainland Scotland and through the Pentland Firth. E mail: enquiries@scottishcanals.co.uk The sea-lock is available HW±4 hours, within canal VHF Ch 74 (16): "Corpach Sea Lock" operating hours.

The basin does not have permanent mooring facilities, and is usually occupied by craft waiting to leave the canal, or to proceed to the east. There are shops and other amenities nearby, including the railway from Fort William to Mallaig. More information can be obtained, and a Skipper's Guide downloaded, by visiting the Scottish Canals website, or by contacting the Canal Office.

Managing moorings for all

Demand for mooring and anchorage space is high. With over 5000 mooring licences in Scotland, we take a lead role in managing the provision of mooring space for the boating community.

At Crown Estate Scotland we have a licensing system in place to help manage access to the marine environment while protecting the interests of other marine users, and work with Scottish Government, RYA Scotland, Scottish Canals, the West Highland Anchorages & Moorings Association and many voluntary moorings associations.

The sheltered bay of Rona's Big Harbour is one of Scotland's most beautiful anchorages. A visitors' mooring may be booked or there's plenty of space to anchor.

This peaceful island is a haven for wildlife, explore the ruins of old settlements or take woodland and hill walks to see panoramic views of sea and surrounding mountains.

Our delicious wild island venison is available to buy in galley-cooking-sized steaks & burgers. By prior arrangement we can provide 'crew pot' dining in our bunkhouse (ideal for first or last night suppers on charters), breakfast packs to cook afloat or 'posh picnics' to enjoy ashore or back on board. Call 07831 293963 for details. 4 new moorings at £10 per night.

Fair Isle, world-famous for its knitting and bird life, has a well sheltered and easily accessible pier at North Haven, and a pontoon for visiting yachts, which can also anchor off the pier if preferred. The island makes a great stepping stone, whether on the way north to Shetland or heading south to explore the rest of Britain.

Fair Isle's internationally acclaimed Lodge and Bird Observatory is around 300 metres from the pier and has toilets, showers and a telephone as well as serving excellent food.

Fair Isle is also famous for its knitting and is the only source of the genuine Fair Isle garment. The George Waterston Memorial Centre & Museum is packed with displays of the island's history from prehistoric times to the present.
